Rober A.M. Stern Archts. designs 43-unit condo

NEW YORK, NY Robert A.M. Stern Architects and developer Corigin Real Estate Group, along with its partner, Florida East Coast Realty, anticipates bringing to market this fall a boutique 43-residence condominium building located at 20 East End Ave. The 17-story building, in Manhattan's Upper East Side neighborhood, sits at the corner of 80th St. and East End Ave., and will offer personally crafted residences from Robert A.M. Stern Architects. Marketing and sales will be managed by Corcoran Sunshine Marketing Group.

"20 East End Ave. will change the way people think about new-classic design. We have evolved from classic roots to exceed today's modern benchmarks for luxury, without compromising our commitment to the refinement and lifestyle principles of the past," said Edward Baquero, president of Corigin R.E. Group. "We believe 20 East End Avenue will set the new standard for how to live as a family in the city today, and we are grateful to be able to do it within this magical enclave of the Upper East Side called East End Ave.," said Baquero.

20 East End Ave. has been designed to deliver proportioned residential layouts and interiors, amenity spaces, which were designed to be an extension of one's home.
